

fjord

saga

Viking Vocabulary

Jelling

Hnefatafl

longhouse

Nordic

A long story in prose written down in medieval Scandinavia or Iceland. Some related myths and legends but many were histories and telling of important events of Viking settlers, kings, explorers and poets.	Refers to the northwestern European countries of Scandinavia (Norway, Sweden, Denmark) plus Iceland and Finland.
Pronounced [YELL-ing] A location in Denmark, site of the famous Jelling Runestone.	Old Norse houses that were long and rectangular which generally had at least three rooms. One room to cook and weave, one room for dining/living and bedroom and one room for storage or indoor craft work.
A narrow waterway where the sea flows inland between cliffs or mountains.	A popular board game during the Viking Age similar to but early than chess.

Answers

fjord - A narrow waterway where the sea flows inland between cliffs or mountains.

saga - A long story in prose written down in medieval Scandinavia or Iceland. Some related myths and legends but many were histories and telling of important events of Viking settlers, kings, explorers and poets.

Jelling - [YELL-ing] A location in Denmark, site of the famous Jelling Runestone.

Hnefatafl-A popular board game during the Viking Age similar to but early than chess.

Longhouse - Old Norse houses that were long and rectangular which generally had at least three rooms. One room to cook and weave, one room for dining/living and bedroom and one room for storage or indoor craft work.

Nordic - Refers to the northwestern European countries of Scandinavia (Norway, Sweden, Denmark) plus Iceland and Finland.

